TO ALL LOCAL GOVERNMENTS, PLANNING BODIES AND PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Enclosed herewith is a copy of the appropriate section of the Statewide Inventory of Historic Properties as expanded under special contract by Stephen Dow Beckham in 1976.

We hope and trust that the Inventory will assist you in the development of your comprehensive plans and other matters. It should be remembered that the Inventory is not complete in this form. It will be revised and enlarged continually. Moreover, archeological sites are not included for purposes of site protection. In many cases, properties which have been entered into the National Register of Historic Places are not included. We are including as an addendum a listing of properties in your area which were included in the Inventory prior to 1976.

If questions regarding the Inventory arise, please contact us at 378-5001.

Sincerely,

Paul B. Hartwig
Historic Preservation Coordinator

NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES:

The National Register of Historic Places is the official list of the nation's cultural resources worthy of preservation. It is maintained by the National Park Service under authority of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. The list contains districts, sites, archeological sites, buildings, structures and objects of national, state or local significance. National Historic Landmarks are automatically included. A cumulative listing of all National Register properties is published annually in the February issue of the Federal Register, the regular Congressional publication. Under certain circumstances, National Register properties are eligible for federal preservation assistance.

DEFINITIONS OF PRESERVATION TERMS AS USED BY THE NATIONAL PARK SERVICE:

Preservation is the process of sustaining the form and extent of a structure essentially as it now exists. Preservation aims at halting further deterioration and providing structural stability but does not contemplate significant rebuilding.

Restoration is the process of accurately recovering the form and details of a property as it appeared at a particular period of time by means of removal of later work and the replacement of missing original work.

Reconstruction is the process of reproducing by new construction the exact form and detail of a vanished structure, or part of it, as it appeared at a specific period of time. Reconstruction should be undertaken only when the property to be reconstructed is essential for understanding and interpreting the value of a historical district and sufficient historical documentation exists to insure an exact reproduction of the original.

Rehabilitation is the process of returning a property to a state of utility, through repair or alteration, which makes possible an efficient contemporary use. In rehabilitation, those portions of the property which are important in illustrating historic and cultural values are preserved or restored.

- - - - -

National Parks - Outstanding, relatively spacious land and water areas under federal ownership. They usually contain a diversity of scenic, scientific and other values and support a broad range of visitor-use programs.

National Monuments - Outstanding land and water areas, usually under federal ownership. They generally contain lesser acreage than National Parks and support a narrower range of visitor-use programs. Their purpose is to preserve resources of special scientific significance.

National Historic Sites - Properties of outstanding historical value to the nation as a whole. They may be under federal, state or local ownership. In the latter cases, the National Park Service acts in an advisory capacity.

National Memorials - Properties commemorating historic events and/or personages of exceptional significance to the nation. Usually they are under National Park Service jurisdiction, but ownership may be mixed.

National Historic Landmarks - Outstanding examples of the nation's historical and/or cultural patrimony. They are evaluated and recommended for designation by the Advisory Board on National Parks, Historic Sites, Buildings, and Monuments. Federal ownership is not implied. Ownership may be public or private, but owner must agree to maintain property in accord with accepted preservation precepts if he accepts designation. Landmark status offers higher priority in the distribution of grants-in-aid under the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 and is acknowledged by a bronze plaque and a certificate from the Secretary of the Interior.

National Survey of Historic Sites and Buildings - Conducted by the National Park Service under authority of the Historic Sites Act of 1935 for purposes of identifying historic and prehistoric places of national significance. The Survey forms the basis of National Historic Landmark designations.

HABS - Historic American Buildings Survey - Initiated by the National Park Service in 1933 for purposes of assembling a national collection of detailed records of historically and architecturally significant buildings. Conducted in cooperation with the American Institute of Architects and the Library of Congress.

HAER - Historic American Engineering Record - Established by the National Park Service in 1969 for purposes of documenting historic engineering, industrial and technological works. Conducted in cooperation with the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Library of Congress.

Cultural Resources In Oregon

To date, some 70% of the State of Oregon has been surveyed by historians to identify historic sites and buildings important to Oregon's past. At the same time, only some three percent of the state has been surveyed by archeologists. The results of these cultural resource surveys indicate that Oregon contains some 2,500 historic sites worthy of placement on the Statewide Inventory and perhaps some 120,000 archeological sites, for a density of about 1.3 cultural sites per square mile.

The large difference between numbers of historic and archeologic sites is merely a reflection of the fact that Indians have lived here for some 20,000 years while Euro-Americans have been in Oregon only about 173 years. The large gap between seventy percent and three percent in completeness of surveys is due to several factors: 1) archeological sites are "buried" to a greater degree and therefore more difficult to locate 2) historians have written records to utilize, often telling them where to look 3) the Indian societies were pre-literate and most of their oral traditions telling of old village site locations were never recorded by early settlers.

Since the year of 1906 the federal government has passed several laws and executive orders in order to try and preserve the cultural remains of both Indian and early Euro-American history. The government realized that the native cultures had been largely destroyed and their cultural remains were likewise disappearing under the shovel of "pot-hunters", the construction of towns, and the activities of road builders, loggers, miners and others.

Each archeologic site is like a book of which only one copy exists. Properly excavated and analyzed, a site can tell who lived there, when they lived there, how large the group was, what the people ate, the climate at the time, the type of social organization the group practiced, average life spans, religious practices and even some of the diseases they suffered from. If this site is destroyed, either through the purposeful digging of relic hunters or through the accidental activities of house, road, sewer line, water line, or other developers, then the book, which is public property has been burned.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The I.O.O.F. Hall in Fossil, Oregon is a two story, brick building which stands at the southeast corner of Washington and West First streets. This structure contains two main sections. The western half of the building, the larger part, has a center bay on its second story filled-in with brick; it is flanked on either side by two one-over-one, double hung sash windows set in semi-elliptical bays with projecting brick "eyebrow" decorations. This section of the building has a low brick facade with a small pediment bearing the inscription "I.O.O.F." at the roof level. The eastern half of the building has three bays of one-over-one, double hung sash windows set in semi-elliptical bays. The western part of the building has three arch bays with a recessed entry on the first floor elevation. The entrance to the second story and lodge hall is located at the rear of the west elevations and consists of an entry with double doors with the I.O.O.F. emblem on the transom as well as attached to the brick above (see photo).

This lodge, No. 110, was active in Fossil in 1905.

Original Use Residence
Date of Construction c. 1905

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The former Abdell Ramses Campbell house stands on the north side of Highway 26 on the west end of Mitchell, Oregon, near the banks of Keyes Creek. This building, though altered, is a one and one-half story, wood frame house with a gable roof. The exterior is now green asbestos shakes. The windows have been changed.

This house was the first in Mitchell and one of the earliest in Wheeler County to have electricity. Campbell constructed a waterwheel in nearby Keyes Creek and generated electricity to light his residence. A. R. Campbell was a son of W. L. Campbell who was born in 1824 in Virginia. The elder Campbell served in the Mexican War and in 1849 emigrated to California. In 1882 Campbell came to Wheeler County. His son, A. R. Campbell, was a longtime resident of Mitchell, Oregon.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The Central Hotel is a two story, wood frame building with a gable roof. The structure faces north and stands adjacent to the old highway in Mitchell, Oregon. The exterior of the building is shiplap. The windows are four-over-four, double hung sash. A two story verandah extends along the front elevation and is shielded by a continuation of the gable roof. A newer, two story wing stands on the west elevation and has one-over-one, double hung sash windows. The building has two brick chimneys with corbelled tops. The kitchen, which was located in a separate building behind the hotel, has been removed as has a small hotel office building.

This hotel was built and first operated by O.S. Boardman who yet owned it in 1893 when he operated the Central Hotel in conjunction with a feed stable. Dr. Jenkins was the next proprietor and about 1909 it became the property of Hiram and Sally Winebarger. The Winebargers operated this hotel until 1918 when it became simply their residence. Sally Winebarger resided in this building until her death in 1975 aged 97 years. Her daughter, June Folston, is the present owner and occupant.

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The Community Church of Spray is a one story, wood frame building which stands near Highway 207 in Spray. The building, which faces east, has a gable roof and shiplap siding. The eaves are boxed and have short returns on the gable ends. The structure is dominated by a square bell tower with a bellcast hip roof. The belfry has an exterior of shingling; the openings to the belfry are now enclosed. A round window is located in both the south and east side of the bell tower. The double entry doors and transoms are located in the east side of the base of the bell tower. The windows are mostly one-over-one, double hung sash and are set in three bays on the south elevation. The north elevation has been altered with the addition of a lean-to.

This building opened as a Community Church. Subsequently it was a Baptist Church and again a Community Church. It is vacant in 1976.

Original Use Church

Date of Construction 1895

Physical description of property and statement of historical significance:

The First Baptist Church of Mitchell, Oregon, stands on Piety Hill overlooking Keyes Creek and much of the town of Mitchell. This building is of wood frame construction and is in a "T" shape. The gable roof is covered with corrugated sheet metal. A square bell tower is located on the south (front) elevation and has an open belfry with a low hip roof. The belfry area is covered with imbricated shingles while the remainder of the building has a shiplap exterior. The church has a concrete foundation and basement. The eaves are boxed. The windows in the sanctuary are lancet in style with wood surrounds and small entablatures.

The First Baptist Church was organized in 1895 and the fellowship erected this building that same year. Kathleen Buhl, writing in 1975, noted, however, that the church was organized in 1884 by J. T. Moore and that in 1896 E. M. Andrus deeded a lot to the church with the provision that no intoxicating liquor could be sold on the premises. Buhl's account is at slight variance in dates when compared to the brief mention of this church in the History of Central Oregon. (See references).
